

Larva feeds on mouse, leaves host and molts to nymph

Nymph feeds on dog or other animal and spreads Borrelia

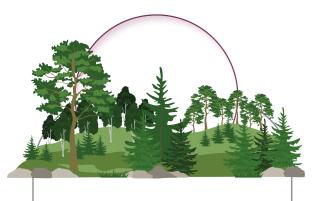

Nymph leaves host and molts to adult tick

Disease risk is increasing

Geography Spreading to new areas

Habitat Forested areas

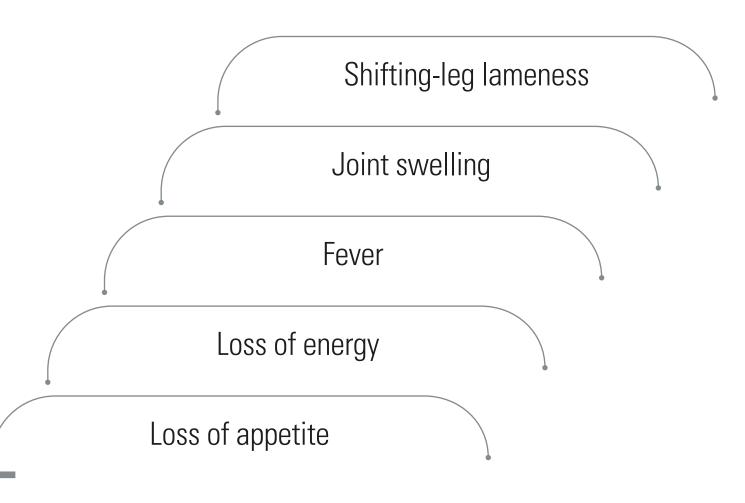

Host species

Lots of deer and mice

Clinical signs

Appear several weeks-months from infection:

Egg hatches to larva

Adult tick lays eggs

Adult tick bites and infects dogs

Ask your vet about protecting your dog

